

MERLIN Project Outcomes

24 - 01 Jul 2021

Poll results

Table of contents

- Would you consider common information modelling (CIM) to be necessary for network operators future business plans?
- Where do you see CIM providing most value?
- If you selected Other or No value, please can you elaborate i.e. what other use do you see for CIM or why do you think it has no value.
- Do you consider advance power systems analysis tools to be necessary for network operators to include in future business plans?
- Where do you see advance power systems analysis tools providing most value?
- Do you consider market auctions to be necessary for network operators to include in future business plans?
- Where do you see market auctions providing most value?

Would you consider common information modelling (CIM) to be necessary for network operators future business plans?

0 1 8

Yes

No

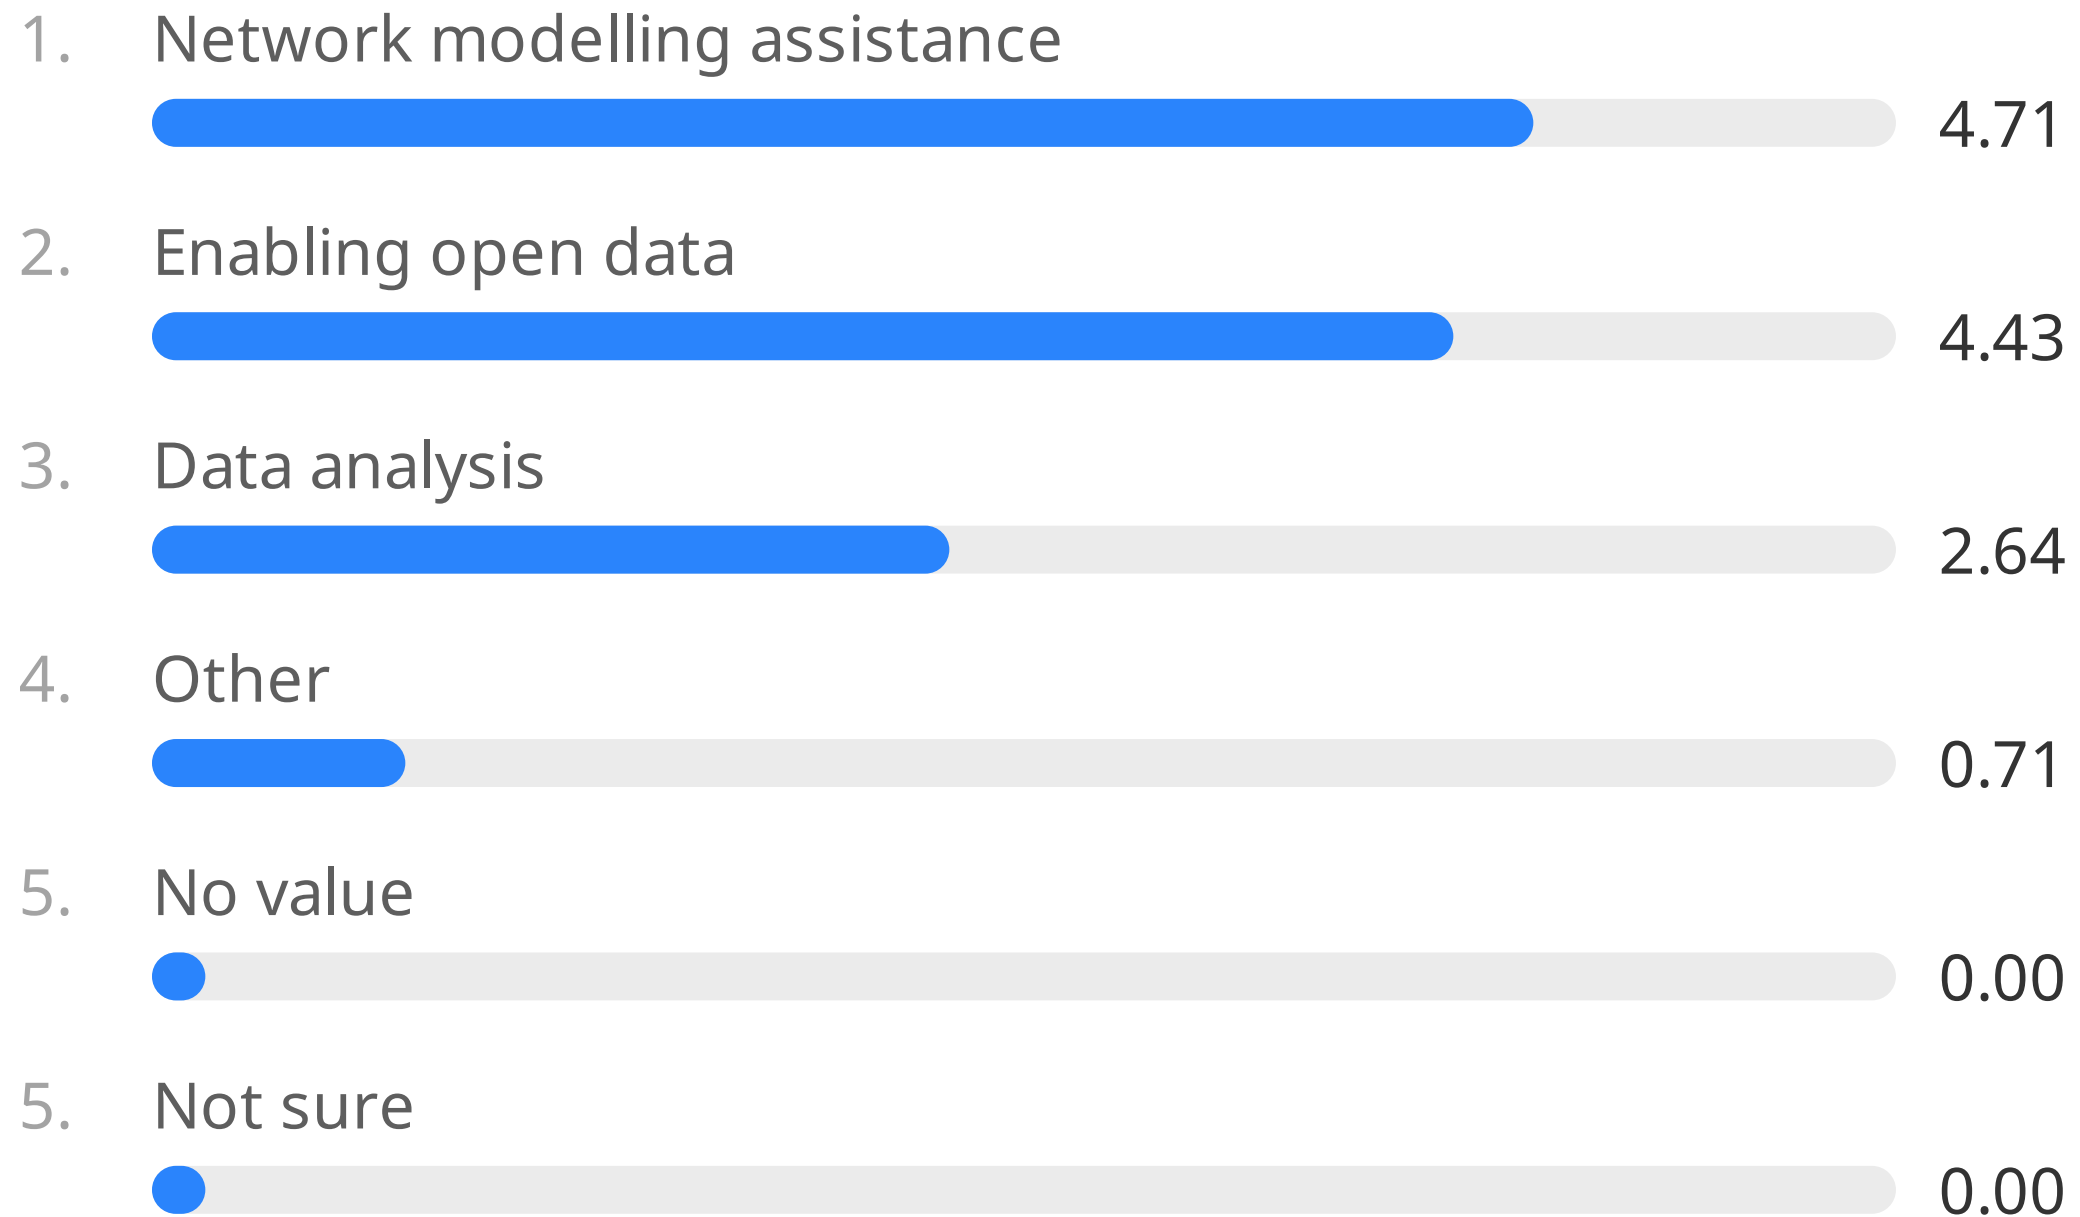

Not sure

Where do you see CIM providing most value?

0 1 4

If you selected Other or No value, please can you elaborate i.e. what other use do you see for CIM or why do you think it has no value.

0 0 4

- It lets you escape from the big vendors
- Standardization and data change management
- Standardisation
- for 'Other', enabling plug & play for other, new, emerging assets/technologies

Do you consider advance power systems analysis tools to be necessary for network operators to include in future business plans?

0 1 5

Yes

No

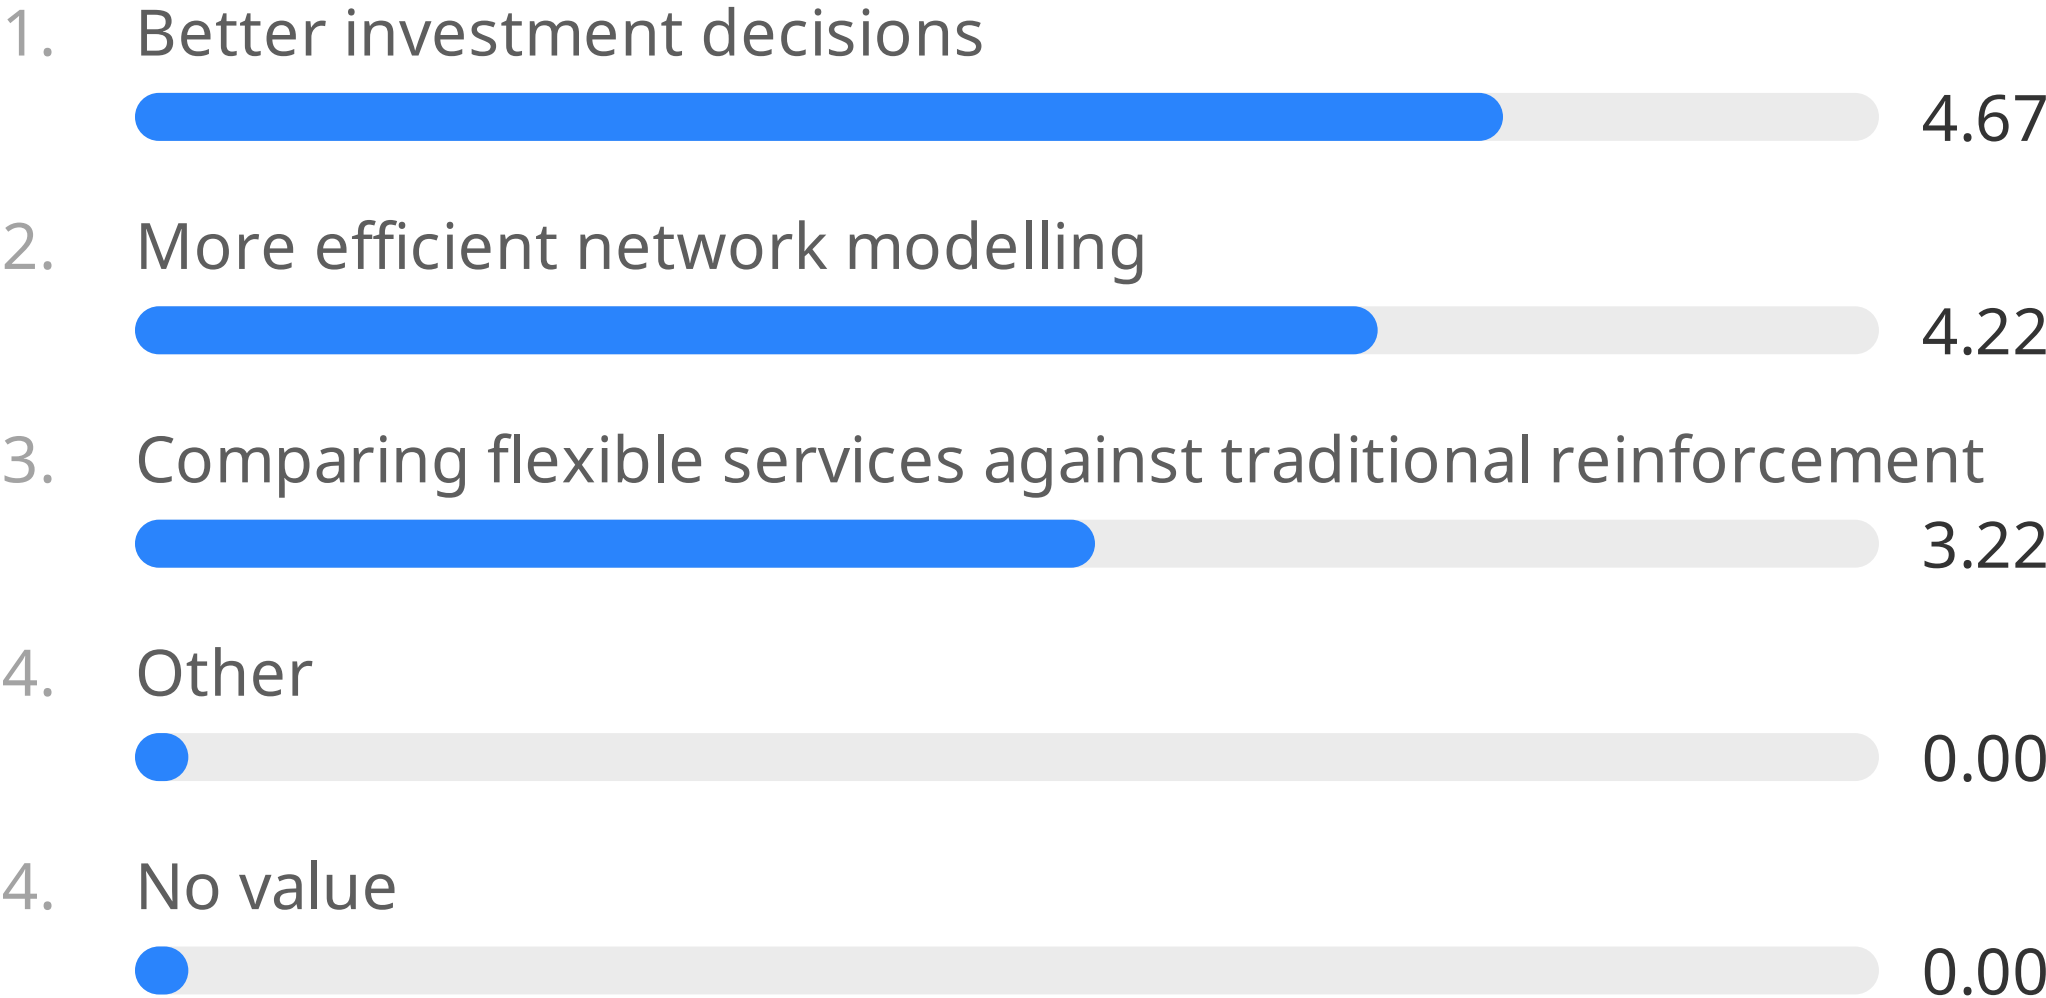

Not sure

Where do you see advance power systems analysis tools providing most value?

009

(1/2)

Where do you see advance power systems analysis tools providing most value?
(2/2)

009

4. Not sure

Do you consider market auctions to be necessary for network operators to include in future business plans?

0 1 4

Yes

No

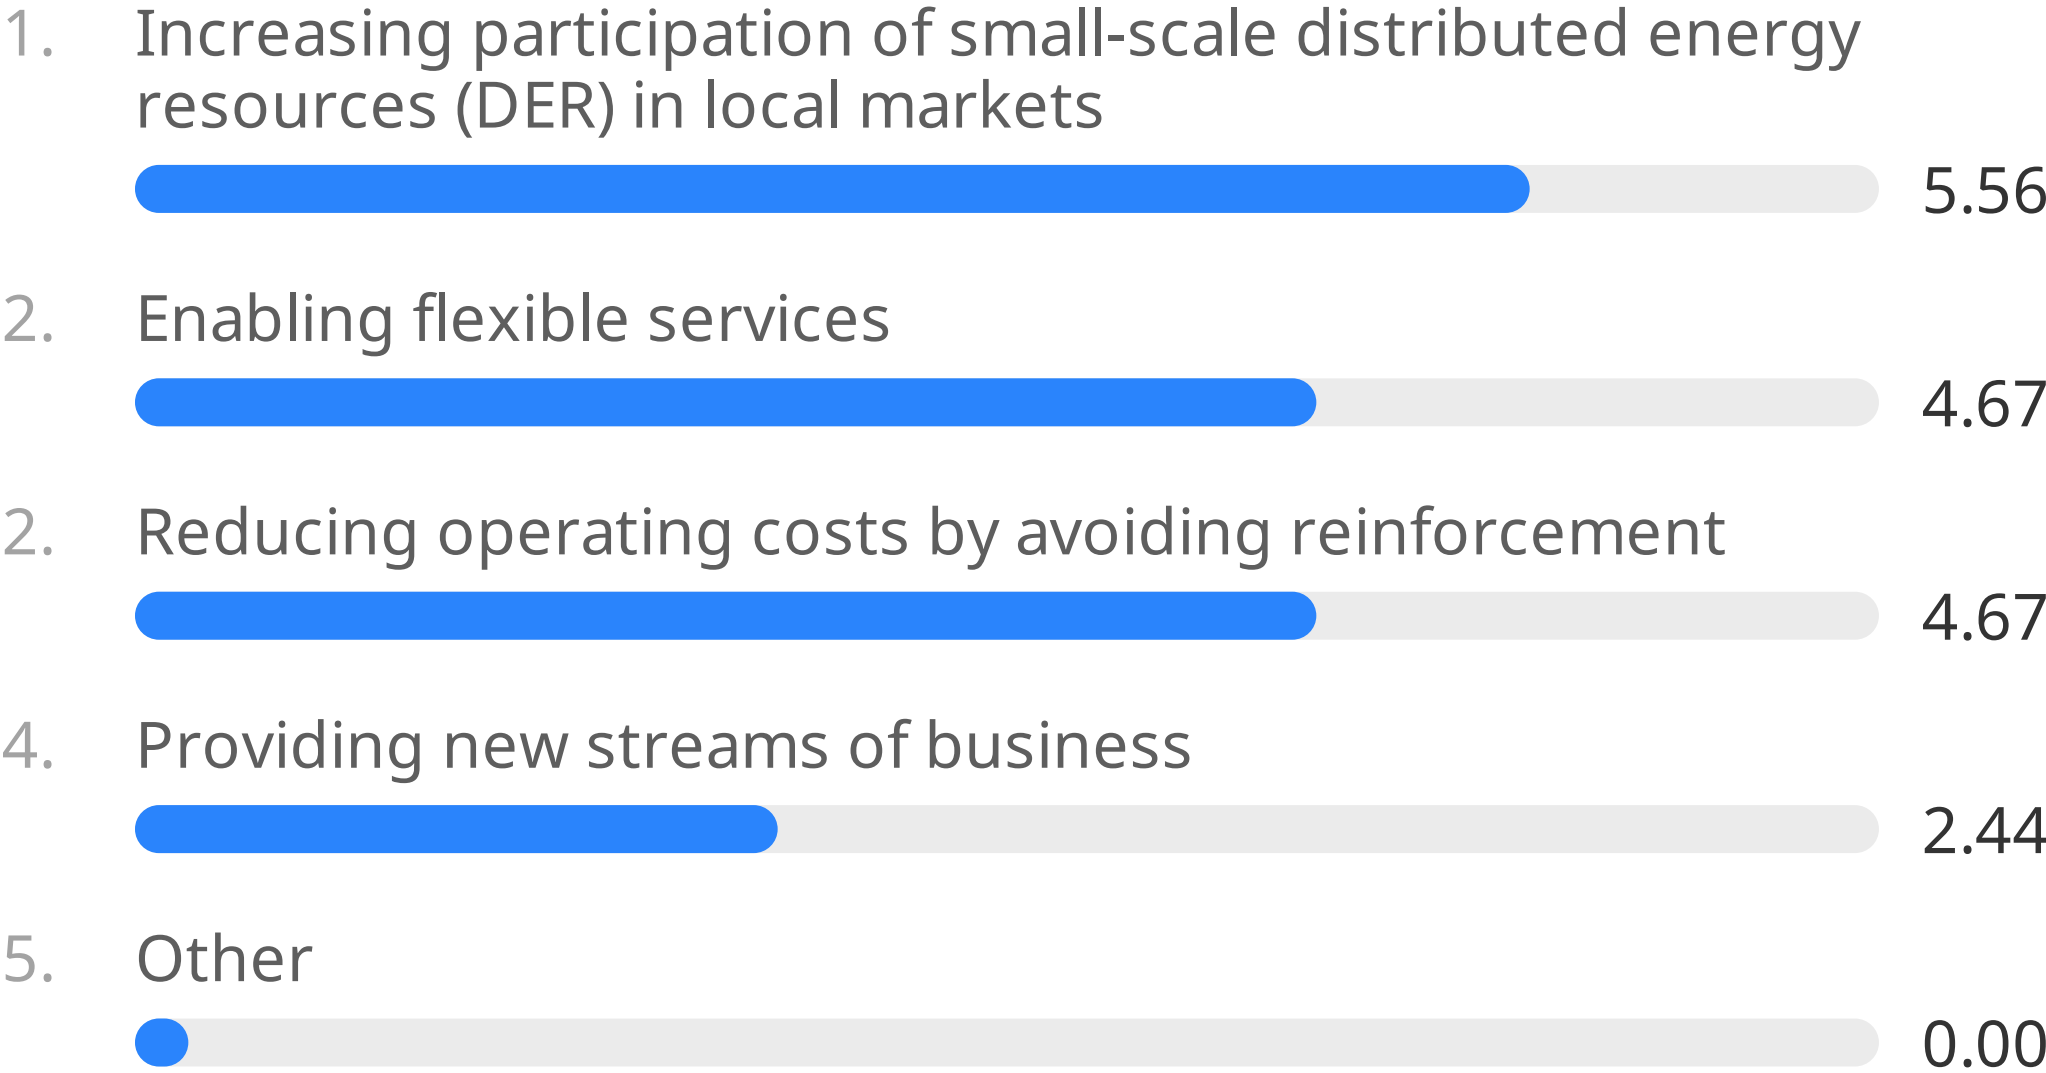

Not sure

Where do you see market auctions providing most value?

009

(1/2)

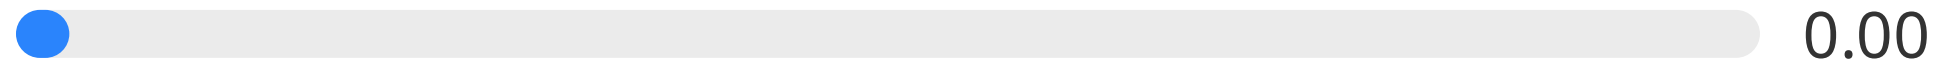

Where do you see market auctions providing most value?

(2/2)

009

5. No value

5. Not sure

